RCC ESTABLISHES NEW PARTNERSHIPS WITH APPALACHIAN STATE, WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY

Robeson Community College has established two new partnerships with universities located in North Carolina – Appalachian State University in Boone and North Carolina Wesleyan University in Rocky Mount.

"We are so very excited to add these two great institutions to our growing list of university transfer partners," stated Dr. LaRonda Lowery, the assistant vice president of instruction and student support services. "This brings our total university partnerships to 10 colleges and universities."

The new articulation agreements guarantee admission for RCC university transfer students who select the university as their choice for transfer upon the completion of the associate of arts or the associate of science degree. Students must apply to the pathway partnership programs and be accepted while they are enrolled at Robeson Community College. For eligibility, students should contact the advisor assigned to program.

What exactly does guaranteed admission mean?

"It means that as a student at RCC, once you've been accepted into a university partnership program and you complete the requirements for a degree, you will be accepted into university and you cannot be denied admission," stated Lowery.

"Keep in mind that thousands of students apply to Appalachian State and Wesleyan University each year and many who apply will get back letters that they were not accepted," Lowery added. "This will not happen to you if you attend Robeson Community College, complete your two-year degree, and apply to the partnership program while enrolled at RCC."

Aspire Appalachian

Appalachian University has a long-standing tradition for welcoming transfer students to its campus. In fact, transfer students make up a fourth of its student body population, accepting almost 2000 students each year to complete a bachelor's degree. Through the Aspire Appalachian agreement, App State seeks to eliminate barriers for those seeking to obtain higher education credentials.

As Joey Hinson, a psychology instructor at RCC and App State partnership advisor, points out, students get much more than just guaranteed admission through this agreement.

"With the Aspire Appalachian Pathway program students will also receive academic advising by App State to ensure a seamless transition, access financial aid advising and planning resources, receive the ability to register early for premier transfer events, and will be given priority consideration for the $1000 Appalachian Excellence Scholarship," stated Hinson.

"If any students at Robeson Community College plan to transfer to App, they should strongly consider applying to this program as soon as possible," Hinson added.

Appalachian State University offers over 100 majors, of which 19 can be earned completely online.

Wesleyan WORKS

North Carolina Wesleyan University affords students an opportunity to earn a degree in an environment that is personal, practical, and purpose-driven. Through its community college transfer program, Wesleyan has tailored its approach with the adult learner in mind. That's why Wesleyan designed the partnership for seamless transfer, which they hope ensures the smoothest transition for students from Robeson to NCWU.

"With the Wesleyan Works Pathway, transfer credits are maximized, giving students the most credit for prior learning, allowing you to complete your degree faster," stated Ursula Adams, the university transfer instructor who oversees the Wesleyan partnership at RCC. "Students will receive automatic acceptance and can apply to NCWU at the same time they apply to RCC, granting a pathway for earning an associate degree and bachelor's degree."

"Students who choose the Wesleyan Works pathway can apply to NCWU at no charge, all application fees are waived through this agreement," Adams stated. "While they are at RCC, they will also receive a NCWU student ID card and have access to all events on the main campus in Rocky Mount, as well as enjoy joint academic advising and financial aid counseling to maximize savings."

"The program is convenient, flexible, affordable, and guaranteed," Adam adds.

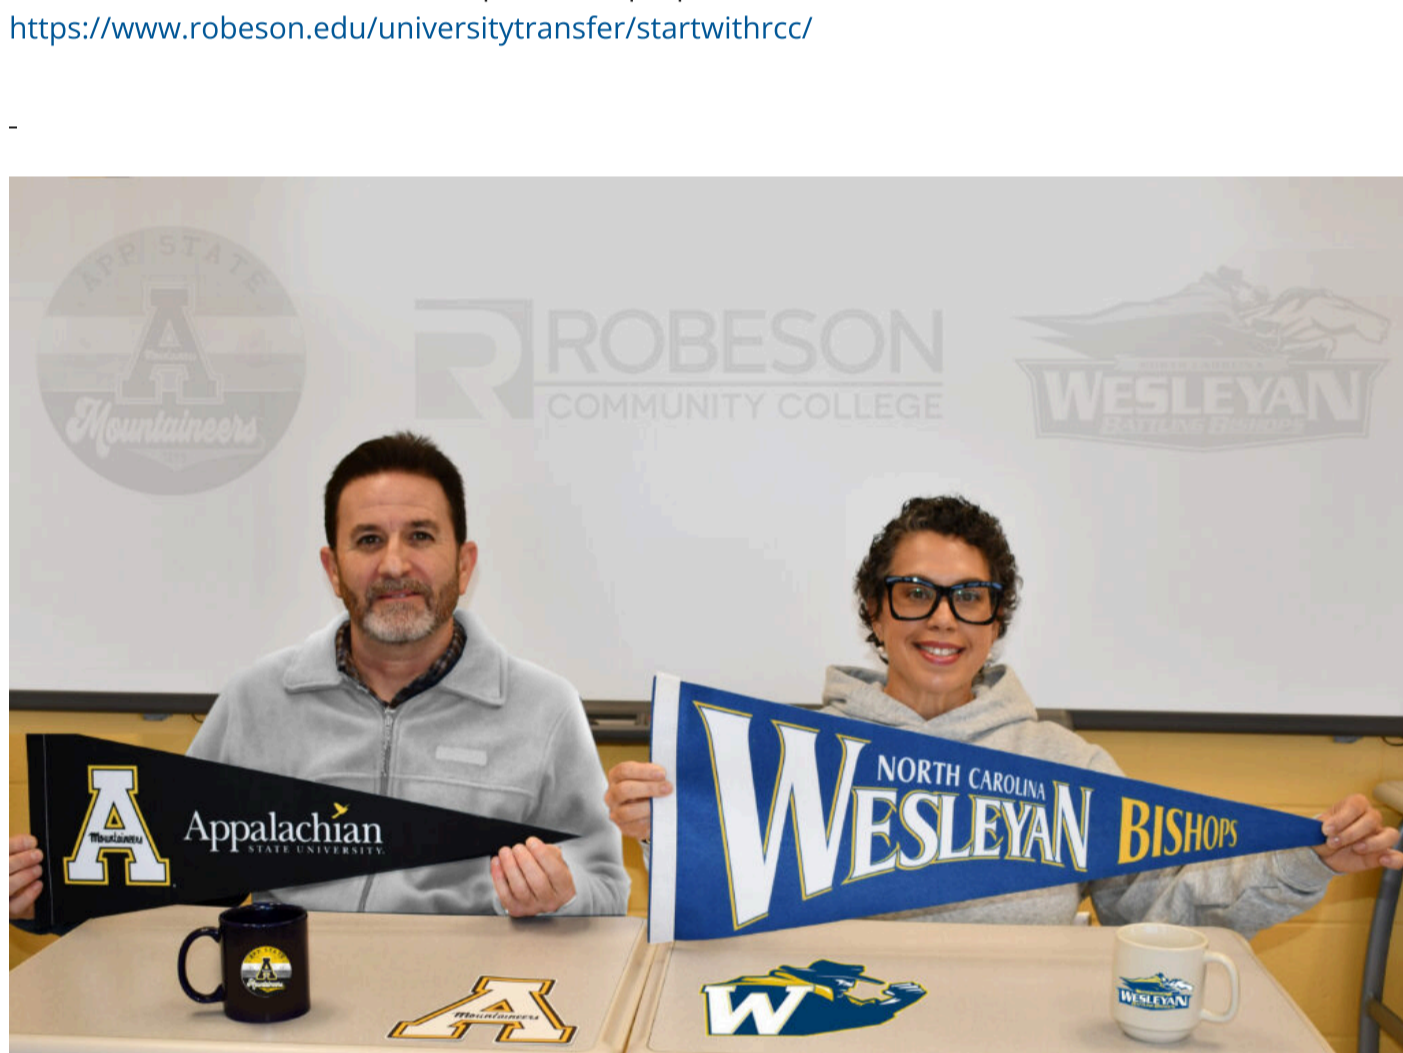

NC Wesleyan University offers 11 programs of study through its transfer program – accounting, business administration, computer information systems, criminal justice, elementary education, healthcare administration, marketing, nursing, organizational leadership, psychology, and supply chain management.

RCC University Transfer Partnerships

In addition to App State and NC Wesleyan University, RCC also has signed guaranteed admission agreements with UNC Chapel Hill, NC State University, UNC Wilmington, East Carolina University, Fayetteville State University, Methodist University, Lees-McRae University, and UNC Pembroke.

"The University Partnership agreements we have are amazing," stated Lowery. "You just need to come talk to us to learn more about the many opportunities available through RCC's University Transfer program and see what works best for you."
