

What They Don't Tell You About Tokyo Disneyland

One of the most overrated places to visit in Tokyo with kids is Disneyland and DisneySea.

I know that might surprise you because everyone expects it to be all fun, magic, and once-in-a-lifetime memories. But the truth is, it is always packed, the lines are long, the heat can be intense, and the park is so big that it becomes exhausting, especially with little kids.

And let's be honest, there are six Disney parks around the world. You are not really missing out by skipping this one.

Instead, visit Yomiuriland. It has smaller crowds, a more authentic vibe, and just as much excitement for kids. Plus, it changes beautifully with every season, so it always feels fresh.

Follow for more family travel content.