

Who We Are

We are a dynamic institution committed to creating a new kind of library experience. We want people to discover the joy of coming to their local library.

We aren't just about books, but ideas. It's the search for knowledge that defines us.

We're about personal interactions and strive to make others feel valued. We build and foster relationships with coworkers and patrons alike based on curiosity, acceptance, adaptability and kindness.

We believe in aligned autonomy. We encourage outside-the-box thinking and champion independence, but work toward common goals and cultivate collaboration.

We are committed to expanding a communication culture built on transparency, clarity and honesty. We believe information should flow upwards and downwards in an organization.

Tell us what excites you. We want your passion to be contagious. Try out new things and don't be afraid to fail. Sometimes we learn best from our mistakes. We know that when you enjoy your work and have fun with it, you're going to do a great job.

We embrace and practice the principles of intellectual freedom, which include equity, diversity and inclusion. We're here for our patrons. We are non-judgmental and look forward to expanding our horizons through varied encounters.

If you have a let's find out attitude and are looking to become part of a community, we want to hear from you.
