

HARD ON SPORTS – NBC SPORTS RADIO AM 1060

Good morning! I'm Cam Henry with an update on KDUS AM 1060.

1. Starting things off with a little bit of football, the Arizona Cardinals signs veteran pass-rusher Terrell Suggs. Although the dollar signs aren't confirmed, the former ASU linebacker will be joining the Card's front seven on a one-year deal. Suggs finished last season with 25 tackles, seven of which were sacks.
2. The Diamondbacks have reached a one-year, three-million-dollar deal with Adam Jones. The deal will also come with two-million-dollars in incentives. The former Baltimore Orioles outfielder had a slash line of .281/.313/.419 last season with the team and is expected to have a lot of playing time during his year with the D-backs.
3. As we take a gander at college hoops, ASU is gearing up for their appearance in the Pac-12 tournament after their 72-64 win against the Arizona Wildcats. Coach Bobby Hurley is confident that his team is focused and determined to stick to the plan of playing solid basketball on Thursday and not getting so head-strung over their place in the tournament. The Sun Devils will compete against the winner between UCLA and Stanford on Thursday.
4. U of A fans were a bit concerned after Coach Sean Miller's post-game speech after the Wildcats' loss to the Sun Devils on Saturday. Miller, however, cleared up the speech, letting everyone know that it wasn't a goodbye speech, but rather a speech of emotion.

[audio]

The Wildcats will play USC at the Pac-12 tournament on Wednesday at noon.

5. The Arizona Coyotes are back to the drawing after a 7-1 loss to the Chicago Blackhawks last night, thus snapping their two-game win streak. The Blackhawks scored two goals in the first quarter before outscoring the Coyotes in the 2nd with four goals. The Yotes will remain in the Midwest to play St. Louis today @ 5pm.
6. After 11 seasons with the G-league, Andre Ingram returns to the Los Angeles Lakers after a number of shortcomings for the team. The Lake Show searches for more help on the floor during their struggles with maintaining playoff hopes and healthy players, losing Lonzo Ball, Kyle Kuzma, Brandon Ingram, and others to injuries. Ingram averaged 10 points, three rebounds, and one and half assists while playing in the G-league.

I'm Cam Henry with your local update. Don't go anywhere. We'll be right back with Hard On Sports on NBC Sports Radio AM 1060.

