

What Are The Aggressive And Defensive Gestures Of The Tigers?

Scene	Supers	Visuals
The video starts with the logo "Save the Malayan Tigers" as an intro
The camera zooms in on a majestic tiger moving stealthily through the underbrush.	Ever wondered how tigers communicate in the wild?
The scene transitions to a close-up of a tiger's face, highlighting its intense gaze.	Aggressive Gestures: Stalking <ul style="list-style-type: none">- Tigers employ stalking for effective hunting. This stealthy approach reduces the possibilities of detection, allowing the tiger to ambush its prey successfully.- Stalking is a strategic and efficient hunting technique that increases the tiger's capacity to catch prey and assures its survival in the wild.

Cut to footage of a tiger snarling and baring its teeth.	Aggressive Gesture: Snarl and Bared Teeth <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - The threatening snarl and display of sharp teeth serve as obvious visual warnings to possible threats. - These signs make it clear that there is danger and that the tiger is ready to defend itself.
Cut to a scene where the tiger is staring directly	Aggressive Gesture: Direct Stare <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Tigers can engage in a direct, intense stare as a type of threat display, indicating a threatening or aggressive mood.
Transition to a scene where tigers are executing defensive gestures	Do you know how tigers communicate through their defensive gestures?

The next scene shows a tiger marking its territory by scraping its claws against a tree.	Defensive Gesture: Territorial Marking <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Tigers use their razor-sharp claws to mark and declare territory. This precise form of interaction defines boundaries and conveys important information about the tiger's presence, authority, and readiness to defend its domain.
The scene transitions to a tense moment, and the tiger lets out a deep growl as a defensive warning.	Defensive Gesture - Growling <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Tigers are powerful predators that use their growls to defend themselves and also to protect their territories.
Cut to a scene where the tiger displays its defensive gesture, swatting.	Defensive Gesture- Swatting <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Tigers use the instinctual defensive gesture, swatting, which is a quick, powerful strike. This particular behaviour conveys discomfort or a perceived threat, acting as a clear warning. - The tiger shows its readiness to defend and set borders through this nonverbal language, revealing the complicated dynamics of the creature's defensive instincts.

The camera pans out, revealing the tiger moving gracefully through the jungle as the sun sets.	Together, let's commit to protecting the untamed spirit of tigers to ensure their heritage lives on.
Closing shot		