Part 1. What is an Anime Tattoo?

An anime tattoo is a body art form where people ink their favorite anime tattoo on their body parts, inspired by anime or manga. It can be a symbol, scene, motif, or character from Japanese animation or comics. Anime tattoos are a form of self-expression that anime lovers use to express their feelings with specific characters or meaningful narratives.

The global anime community has grown in the last two decades, mainly in 2010 when exposure to anime became easier with the rise of the internet. One of the reasons behind this popularity was the artistic appeal, self-expression, and emotional connection people feel. Moreover, social media applications like Instagram fill the gap with the ease of access to anime fans with their favorite character.

Consequently, the Japanese anime industry came to the mainstream with the ease of sharing and admiring. Additionally, the unique characters and motifs are among the reasons for their popularity, such as Goku from Dragon Ball Z and Naruto Uzumaki from the Naruto Series.
