25 Zeidane Inoussa is a Swedish left winger at Swansea City who offers a direct, ball-carrying threat built around his pace and 1v1 ability. He's most dangerous when he receives with space, commits the fullback and drives into the final third, and his strengths are in progressing play through dribbles and stretching the pitch in transition. The limitation in his current profile is that his actions don't always translate into consistent end product, after he beats his man, the final pass/shot choice and timing can be a little hit-or-miss, so his next step is turning more of those carries into repeatable chances (earlier release, better cut-backs, and more purposeful box entries) while maintaining the same intensity and directness that makes him a problem to defend 1v1.
