Games Played

19 Tom Bischof is a young German central midfielder who's most comfortable playing as a No. 6/8 hybrid, giving his team progression and creativity from the half-spaces. He likes to receive on the half-turn between lines, combine quickly in tight areas, and then accelerate play via a ball carry or a forward pass, and he's an added threat around the box because he can arrive late into shooting areas and get a shot off when the space opens up. Out of possession, he has a strong ball winning mindset and a high work rate, but he's not a pure ball-winner or a fixed holding midfielder (a lone No. 6) his value comes from reading space, jumping to press, and then turning recoveries into immediate forward actions. In short, he's a midfielder who helps progress the game forwards and adds a real threat from advanced central areas, with his fit looking best in a side that gives him license to play high and combine rather than asking him to anchor the midfield by himself.
