Tiago Gabriel is a 20-year-old Portuguese centre-back for Lecce who's a pure defender. He's 6'5 and uses that frame properly: dominates his box, wins arials for fun, and even with the height he's not passive, he steps in and goes through people with challenges on the ground. His tackling and challenge success is a big part of his game, he uses his long legs well and it's genuinely hard to beat him when he commits to the duel, so he gives you real security in on-ground defending as well as in the air. The main thing holding him back from the next level is on the ball, because he isn't a natural ball-player yet, so the next step is improving his passing and composure so he can contribute to build-up instead of just defending his box.
