

Emersonn

Age	Foot	Nationality	Club	Height	Position
22	Right	Brazil	Ipswich Town	186cm	ST

Player Overview

Emersonn is a powerful centre-forward whose game is built around his physical presence, movement in behind and ability to give his team a focal point at the top of the pitch. He is a big, athletic striker who competes well with centre-backs, provides a strong target for direct passes and can bring teammates into attacks through his hold-up and link play. He is particularly dangerous in the air, attacks crosses aggressively and carries a clear threat from set pieces, with the timing and power to score headers in crowded areas. There is also more mobility to his game than his frame initially suggests. He can drive forward with the ball, attack space with decent pace and run channels when opportunities open up. Overall, he profiles as a physically dominant, energetic number nine with a useful mix of aerial threat, running power and developing technical quality.

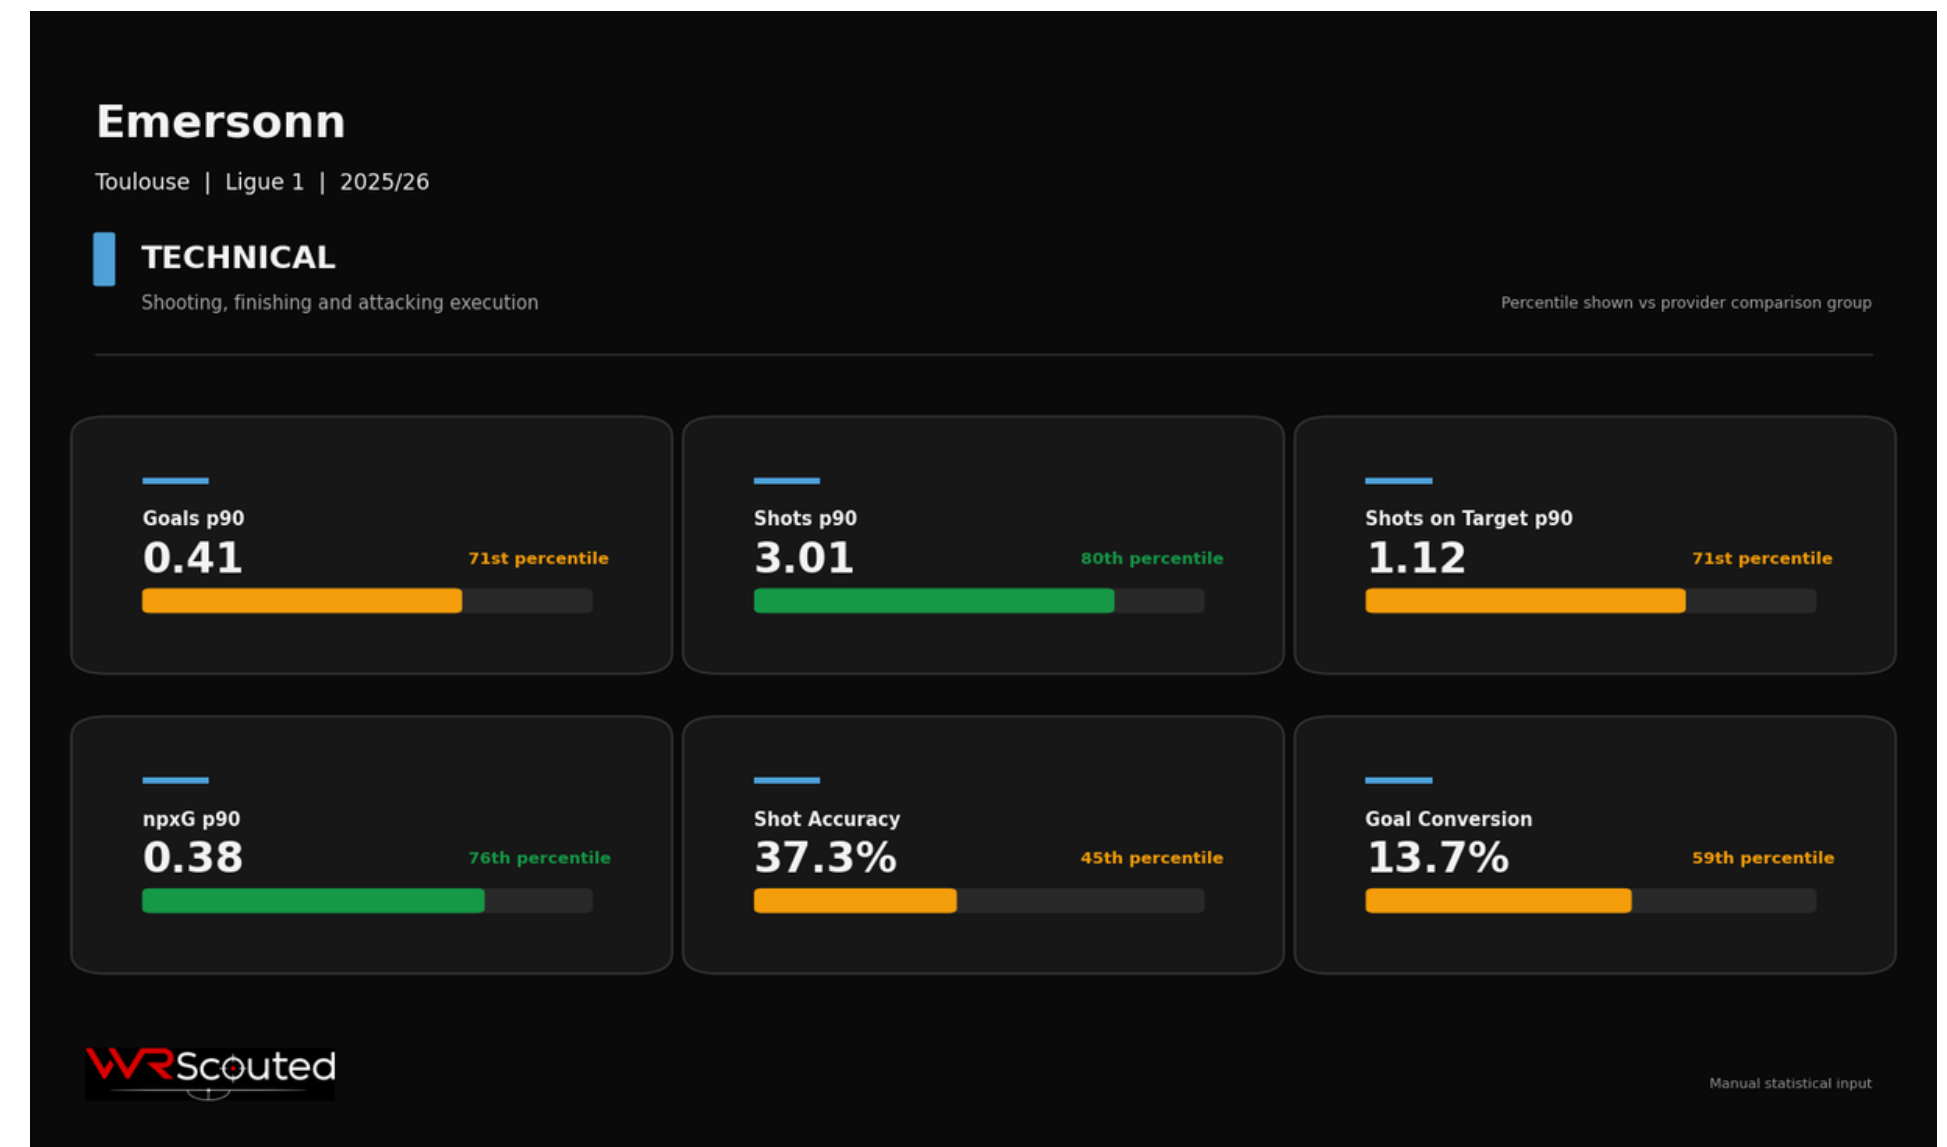

Emersonn

Technical

Technically, Emersonn is at his best when using his body to retain possession and connect attacks. He receives into his feet well when he has a defender close, protects the ball strongly and can set passes into nearby midfielders or wide players before moving forward again. His link play is generally simple and effective, particularly when he is used as the central reference point in an attack. He is also a capable ball carrier and can drive through open space with power, showing enough control to maintain possession at speed. Inside the box, he attacks the ball aggressively and generates good power on headers, while his shooting carries natural force when he gets chances from central areas. His first touch can still be inconsistent when passes arrive quickly or awkwardly, and improving the cleanliness of his control would make his hold-up play more reliable under heavy pressure.

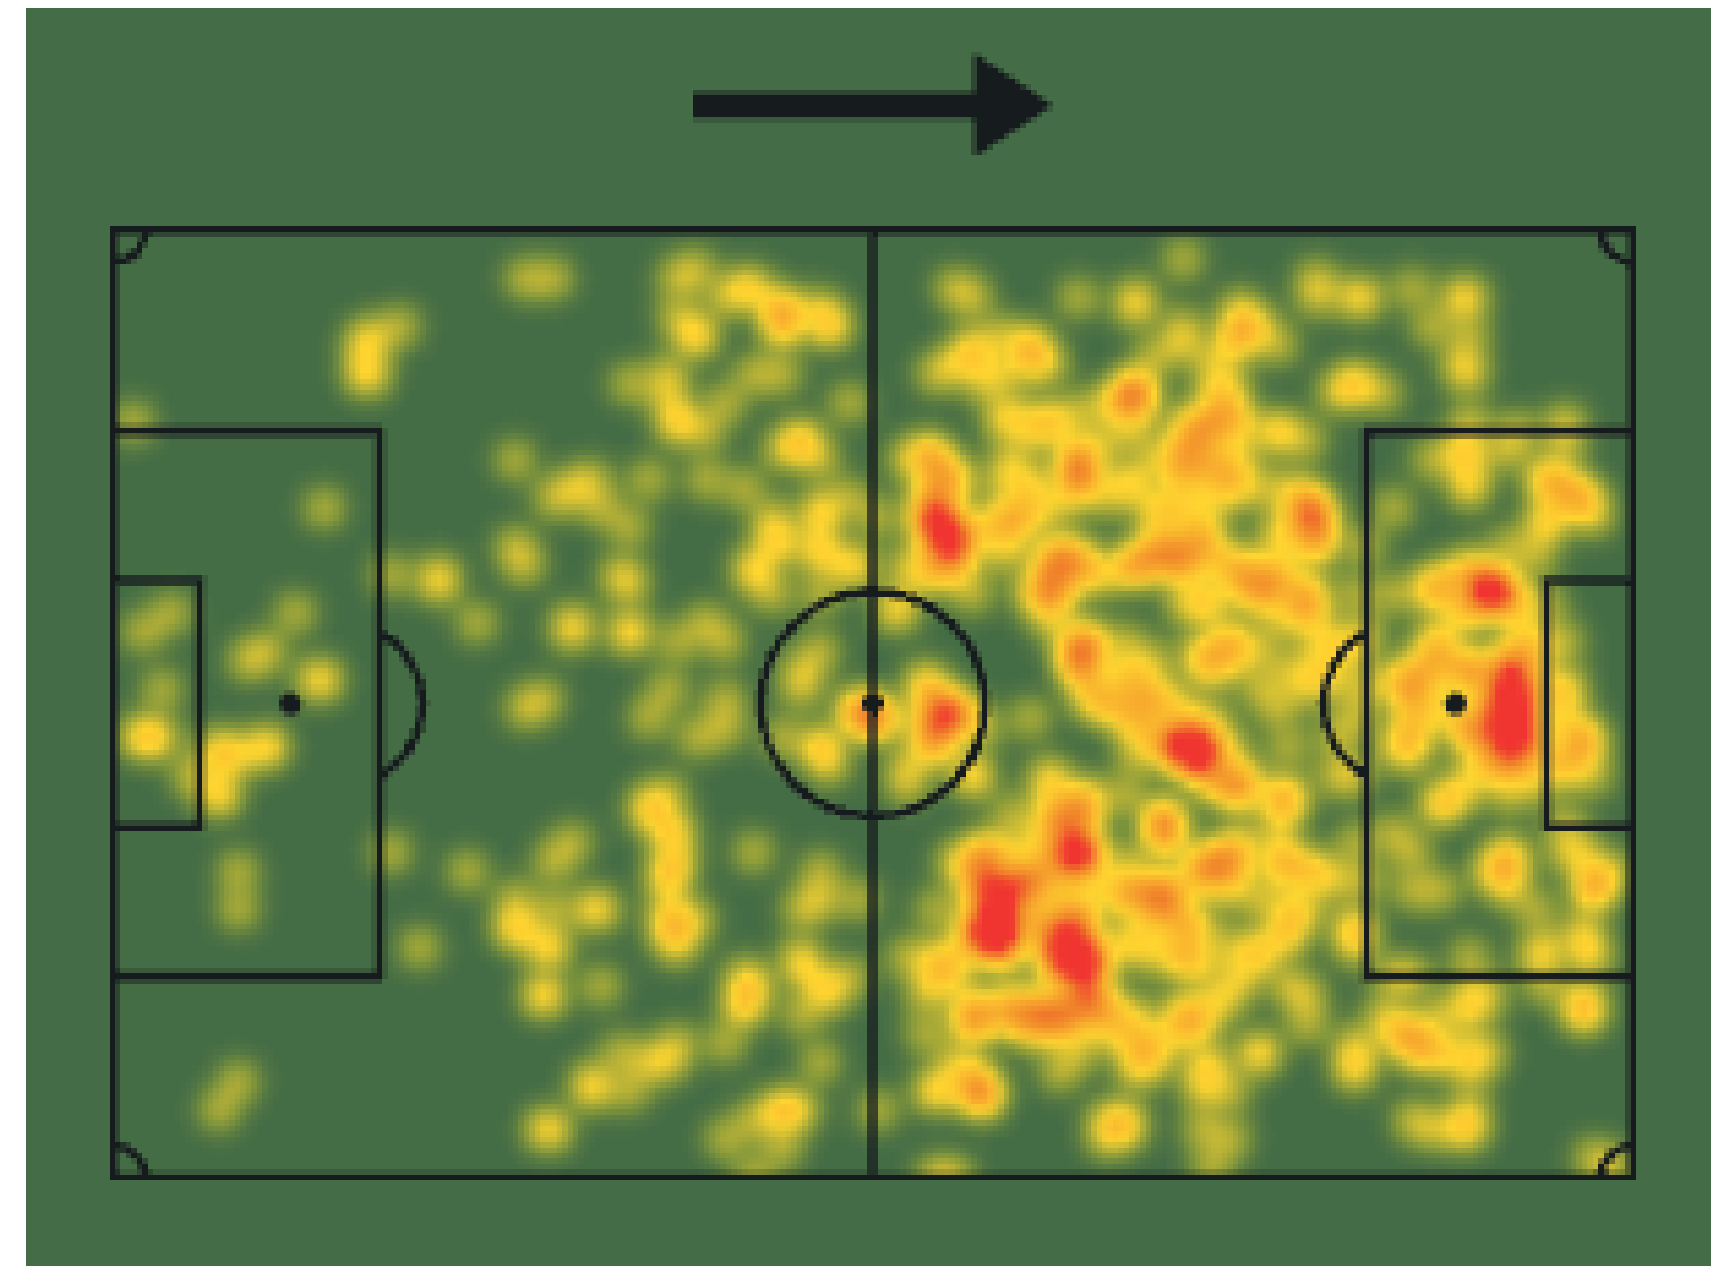

Emersonn

Tactical

Tactically, Emersonn gives his team several options for progressing the ball into attacking areas. He can play with his back to goal and offer a direct target into the front line, but he also makes frequent forward runs and looks to stretch centre-backs when space appears behind them. He is comfortable drifting into the channels and can receive longer passes away from the centre before carrying the ball back towards goal. His movement inside the box is direct and aggressive, particularly when crosses are delivered, and he attacks central and back-post zones with a real threat. Emersonn also provides a clear target from attacking set pieces and is capable of occupying multiple defenders when the ball is delivered into crowded areas. His combination of hold-up play, depth running and penalty-box movement allows him to contribute across several different attacking situations.

25/26 Ligue 1 Heatmap

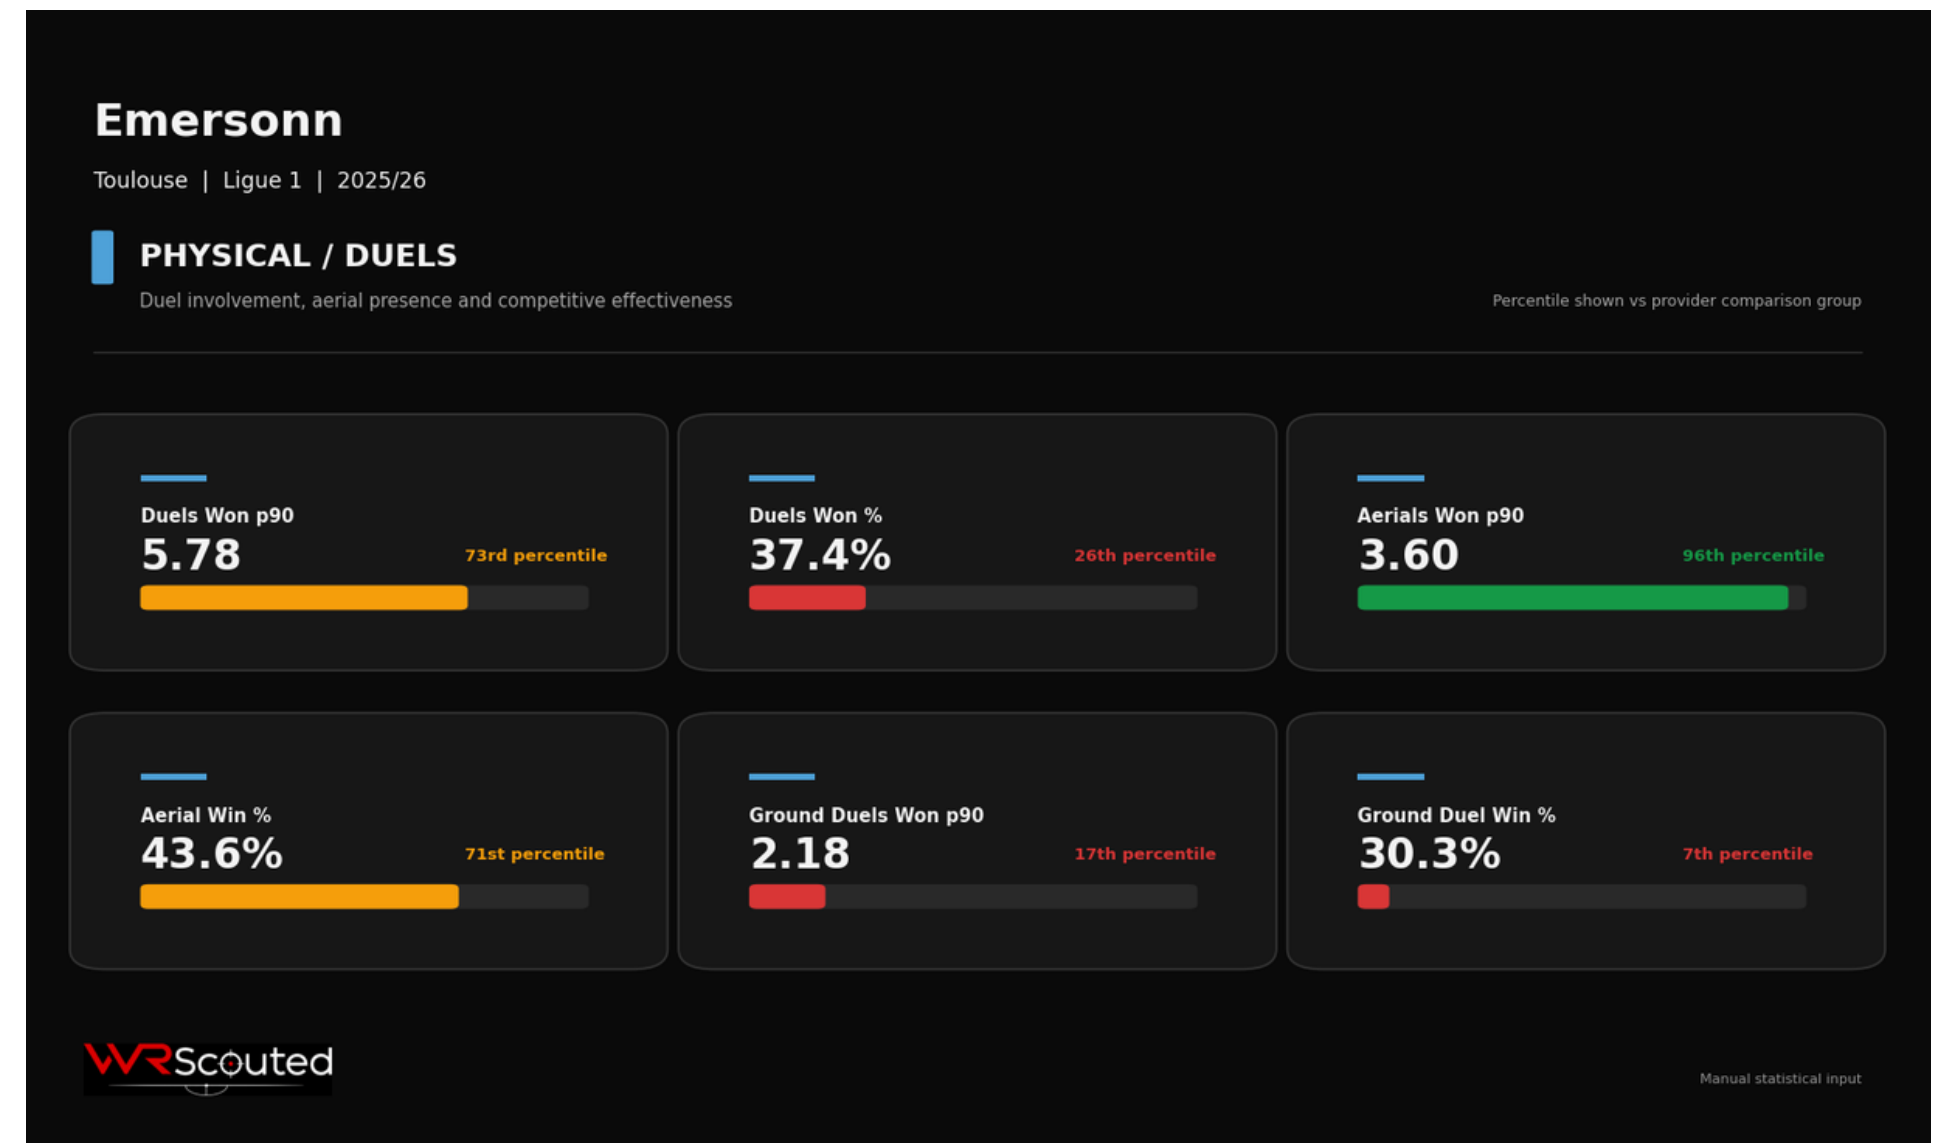

Emersonn

Physical

Emersonn's physical attributes are the standout part of his profile. He has a strong frame, good upper-body strength and enough size to consistently compete with centre-backs for direct balls. He uses his body well when protecting possession and is difficult to move once he establishes position between the defender and the ball. In the air, he shows good timing and aggression, attacking crosses and long passes with purpose and generating strong contact on headers. He also has good running power and can cover ground quickly once he gets into stride, making him a threat when attacking space behind the back line. His mobility allows him to move across the front line and carry the ball over distance without losing much momentum. The combination of strength, aerial ability, pace and endurance gives him a physical profile capable of causing problems in several different phases of the game.

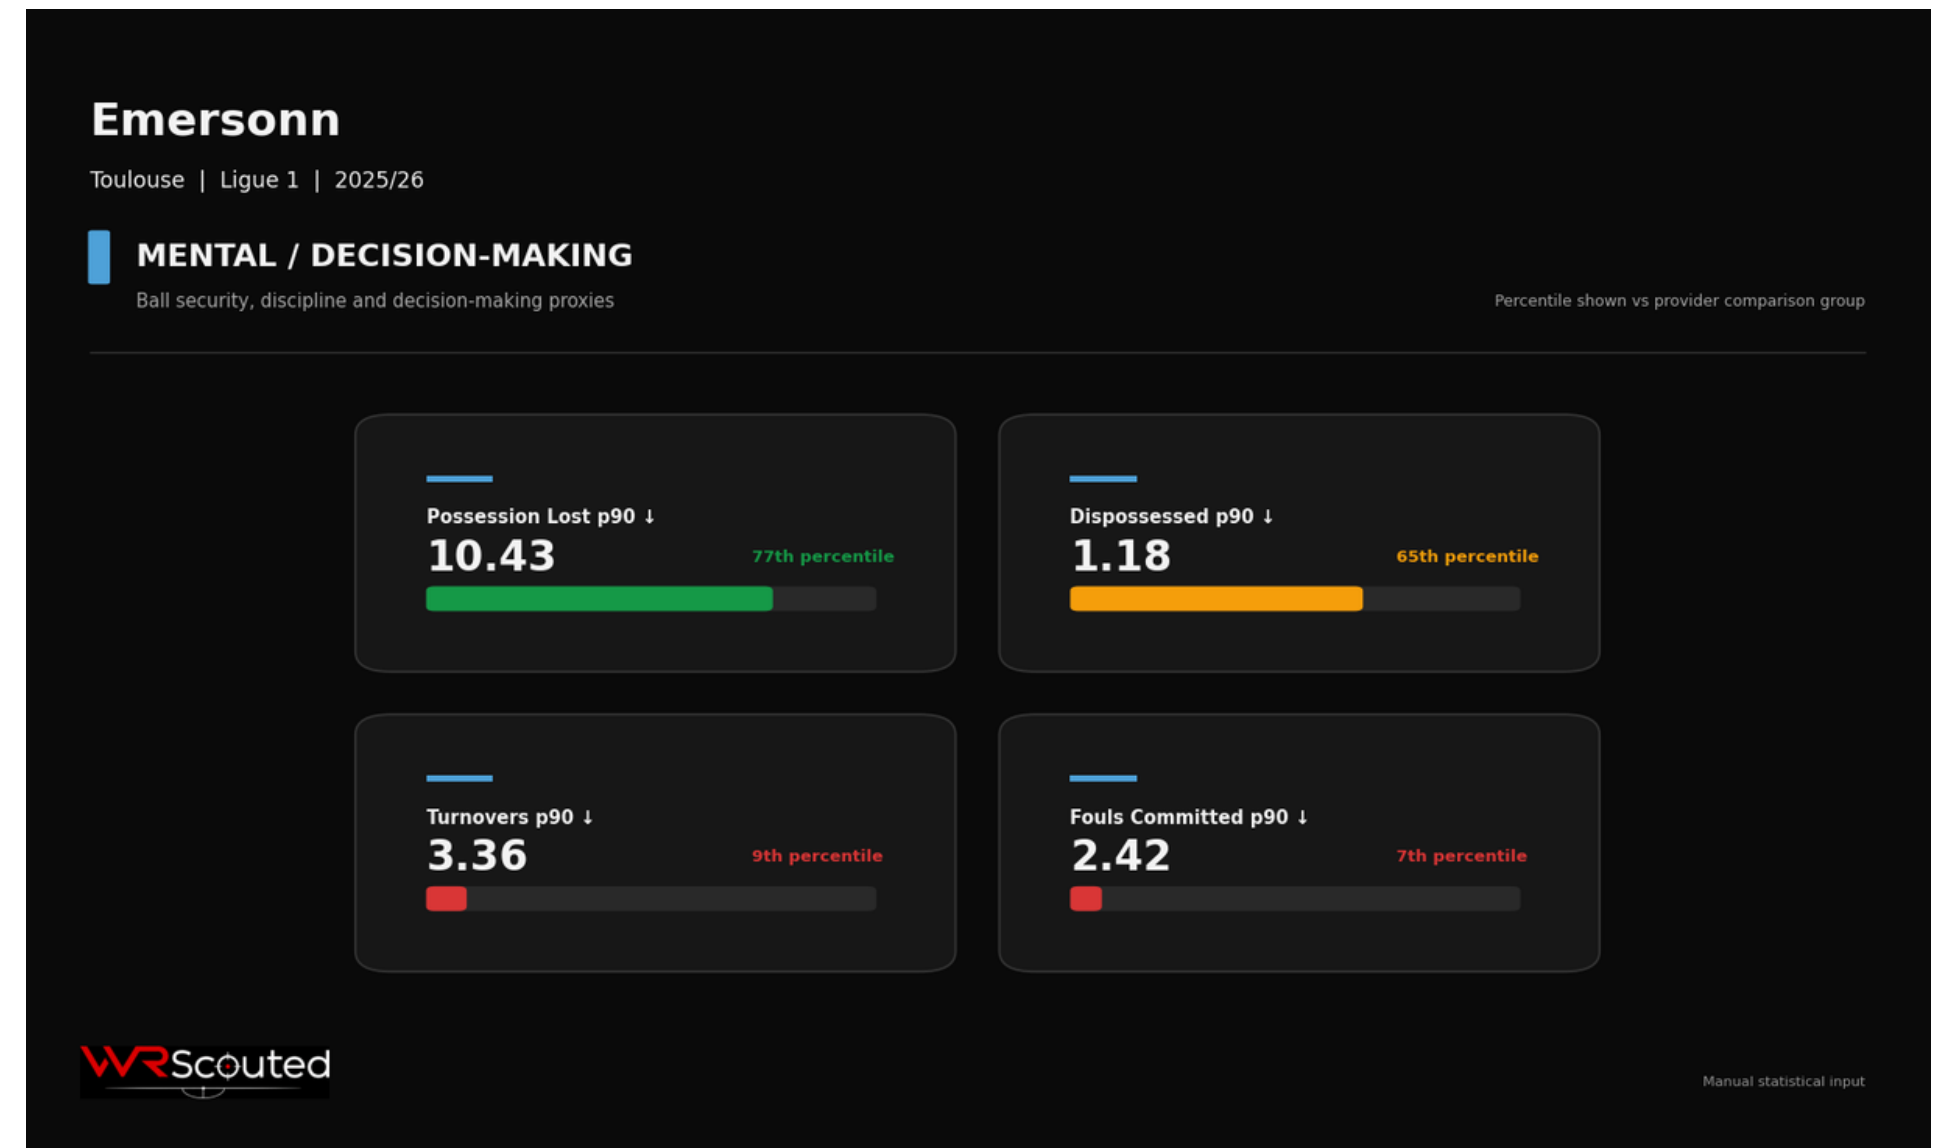

Emersonn

Mental

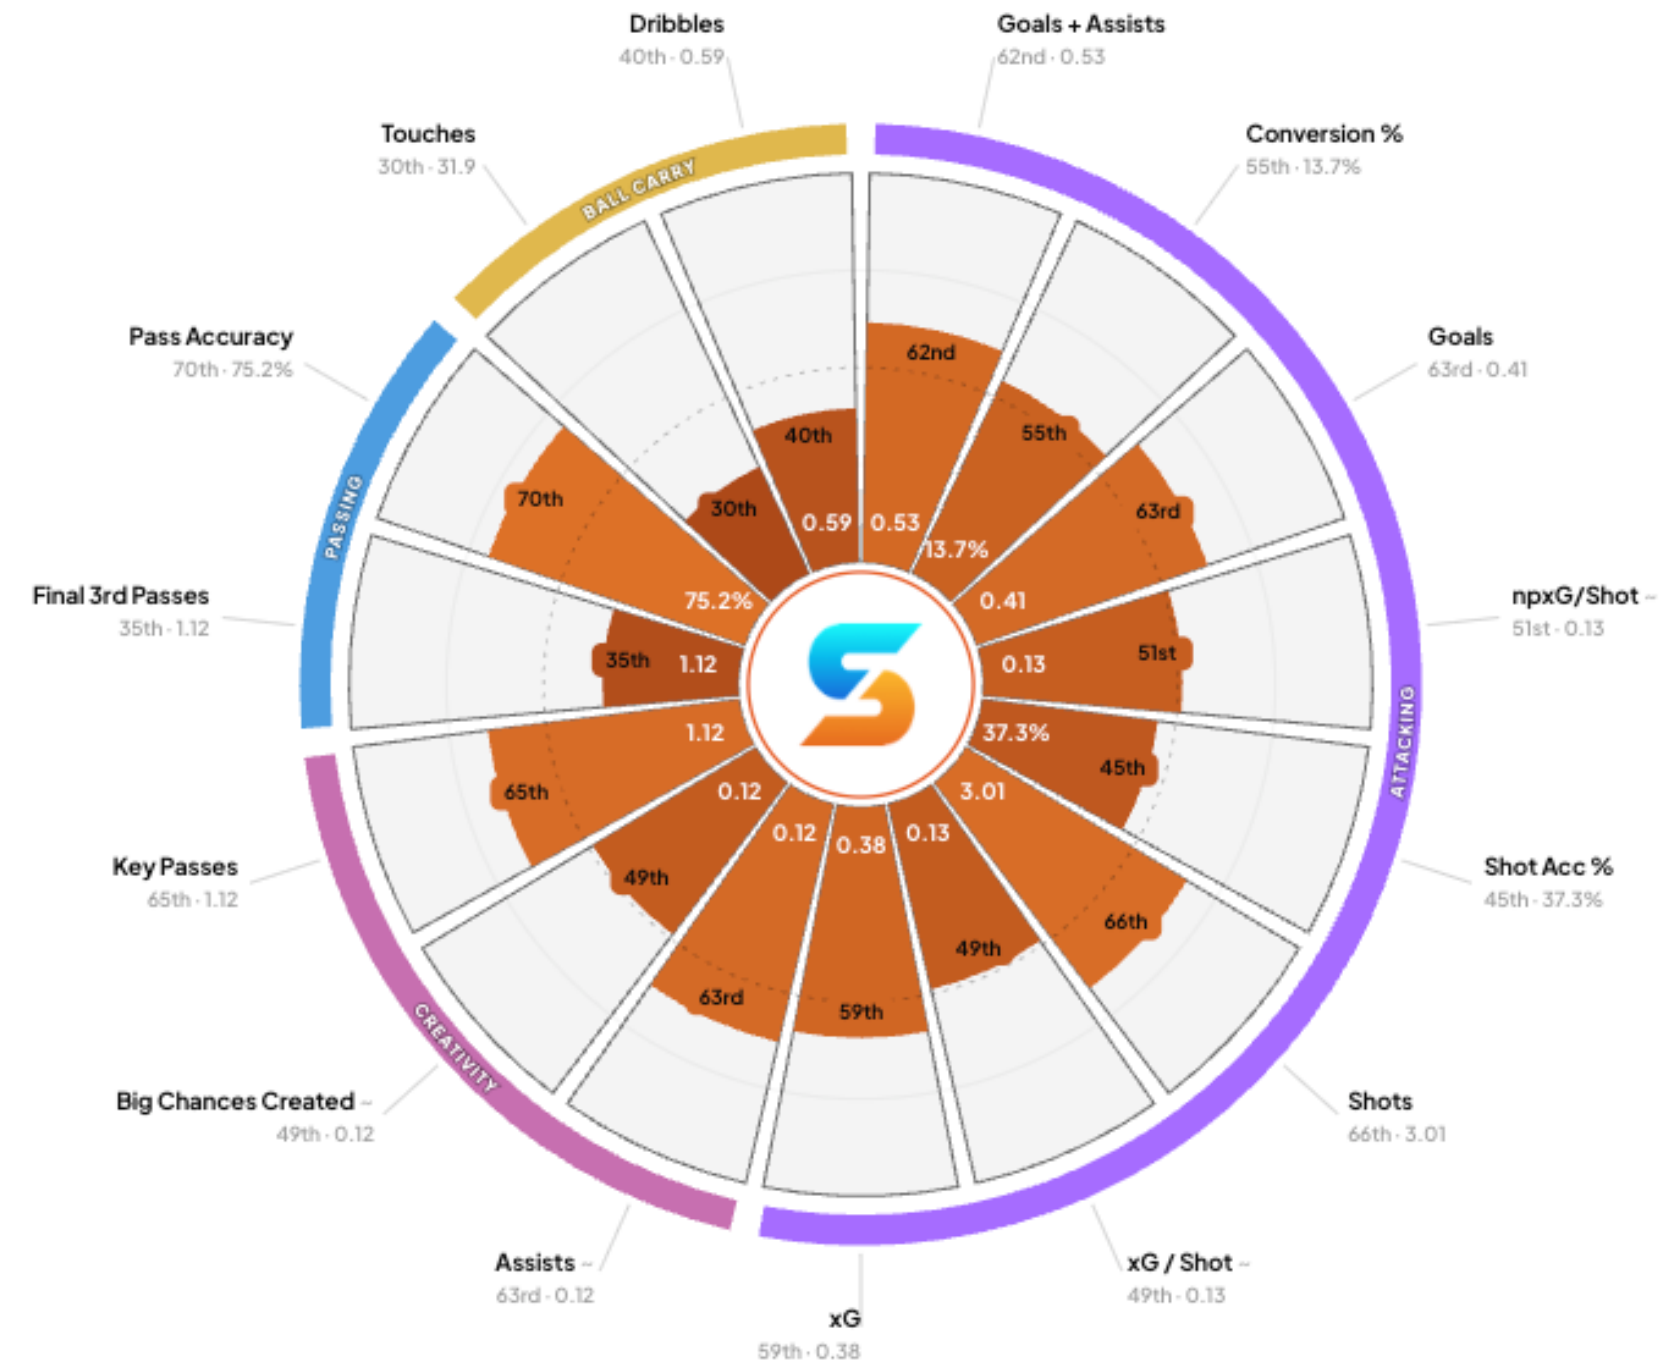

Mentally, Emersonn plays with a lot of aggression and competitive energy. He is willing to engage centre-backs repeatedly, compete for difficult passes and keep making runs even when he has not been heavily involved in possession. His movement around the box shows good attacking intent and he is aggressive when opportunities develop from crosses, rebounds or second balls. He also works hard without possession and gives consistent effort when pressing or reacting after the ball is lost. There is confidence in the way he carries the ball and takes responsibility when he finds space to drive forward. The main area for development is maintaining concentration and composure throughout longer periods of the game. His decisions and first touch can become rushed under pressure, and greater consistency in those moments would help him become a more reliable focal point against stronger defensive opposition.

Emersonn

Pizza Chart (Attacking Metrics)

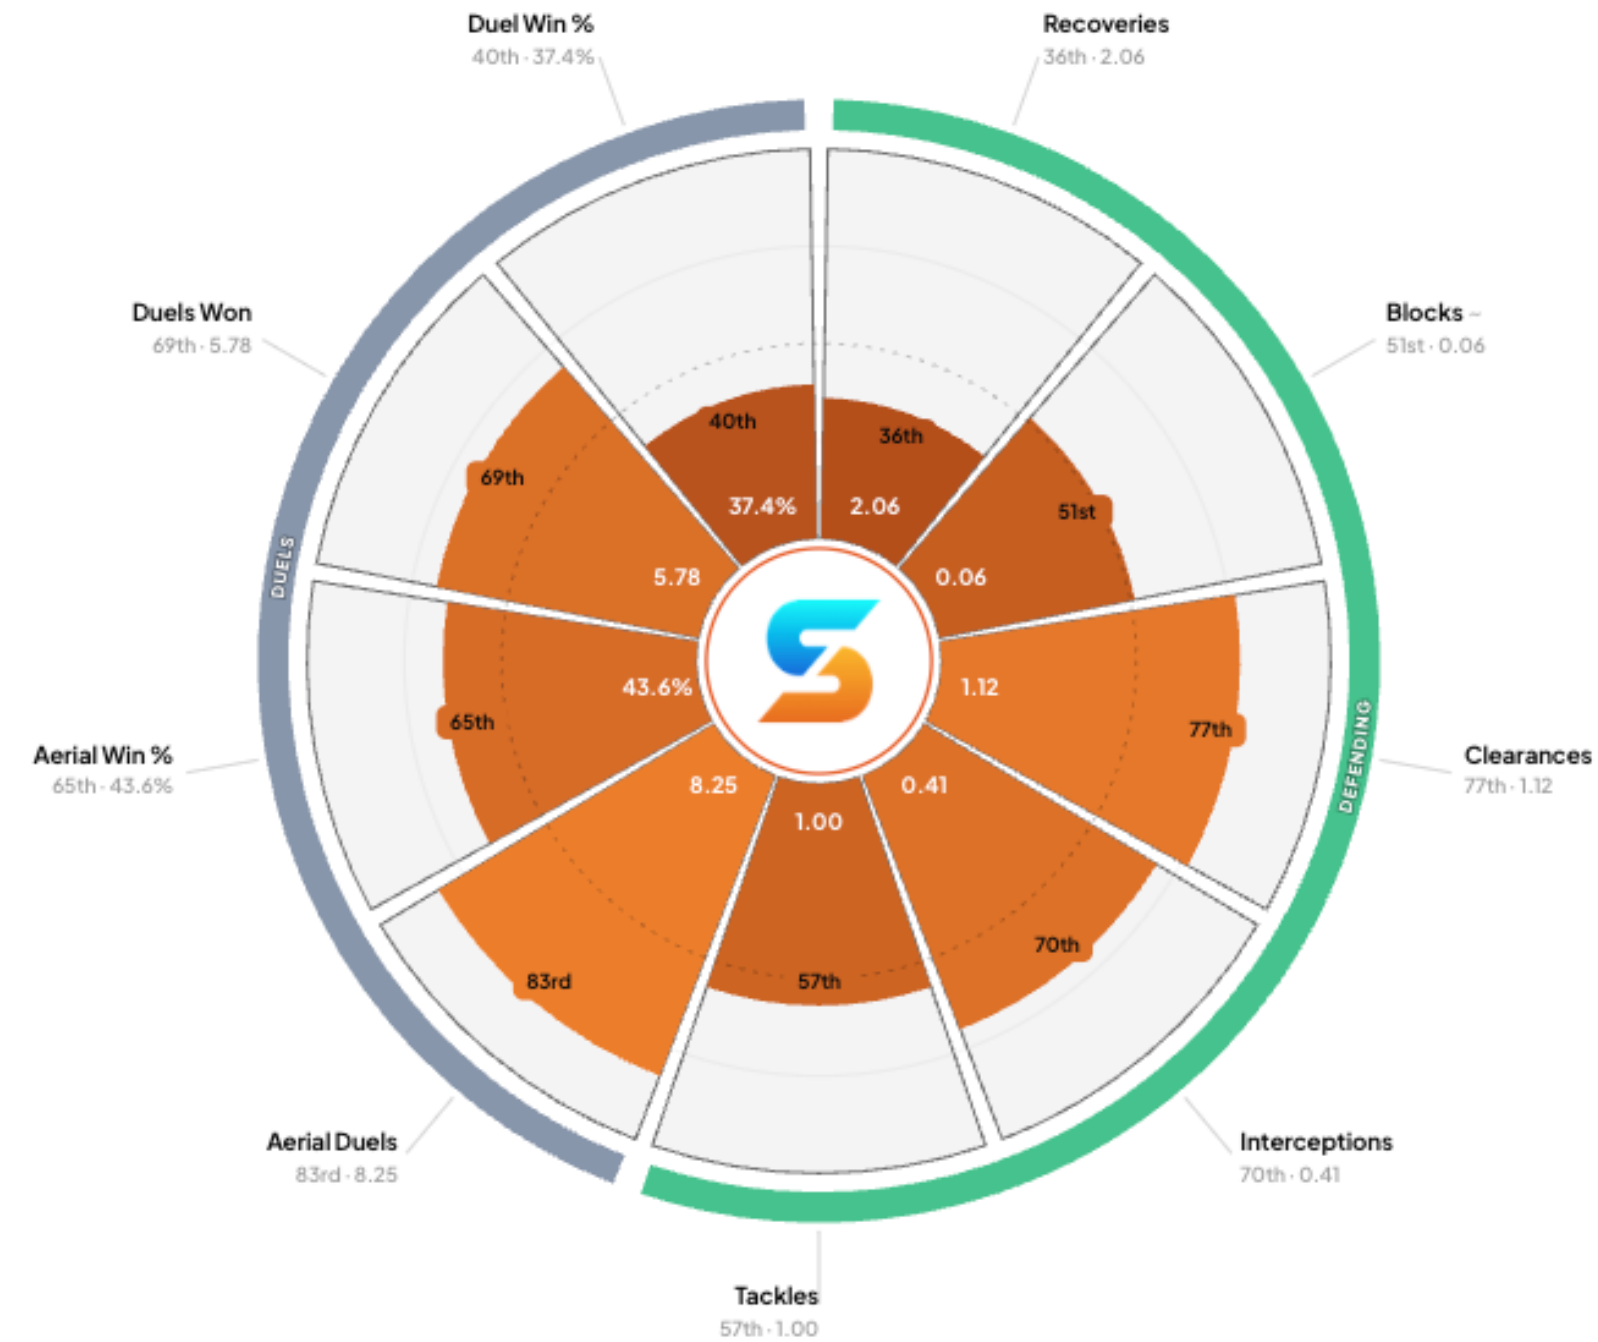

Compared to all U23 Strikers from the Top 5 Leagues (2025/2026)

Emersonn

Pizza Chart (Defensive Metrics)

Compared to all U23 Strikers from the Top 5 Leagues (2025/2026)

Emersonn

Conclusion

Emersonn is a physically imposing centre-forward with a profile that gives his team a clear presence at the top of the pitch. His strength, aerial ability and aggressive penalty-box movement make him difficult for centre-backs to manage, while his pace and willingness to run in behind add another dimension to his game. He can hold possession, connect with teammates, carry the ball forward and offer a consistent target from crosses and set pieces. The physical tools are already a major strength, and there is enough technical ability around them to make him an interesting all-round striker instead of simply being a penalty-box presence. The biggest development area is the consistency of his first touch and decisions when playing under pressure. Overall, he profiles as a powerful, mobile number nine with significant upside if the technical side of his game continues to develop.

Current Level

Starter

Potential Level

Squad Player