

Families turn out in their numbers at the National Park to celebrate Guyanese culture, wearing their traditional African attire for the Emancipation celebration.

Celebration filled the streets, Guyanese of all ages celebrating culture and unity.

Joy filled the street as children grab their bikes riding all over, enjoying the splashes of water, celebrating the festival of colours and unity. Truly a celebration for all.

Night blooms in radiant color. A celebration of light over darkness as the floats move slowly on the streets and people stand there eagerly awaiting them.

As the drums echo from the drummers dressed in their traditional attire while moving to the rhythm. A gentle reminder to keep the tradition alive.
