

The Party Never Ends: The Votes Are In!

Juice Wrld fans have been waiting three long years for the release of the highly promoted posthumous album from their favorite artist: The Party Never Ends. Juice Wrld's estate finally delivered on this promise on November 28, 2024, but it was not all that the fans expected from the estate.

When Juice Wrld passed in 2019, the fans knew that he had a vault of over two thousand songs just waiting to let free to the public, but the estate was not going to do so yet as they knew they had to make capital gain to some degree. The releases of Juice Wrld's first two posthumous albums, Legends Never Die and Fighting Demons, freed some gems from the vault with the addition of new songs as well that has not been leaked to the impatient fanbase already. However, the Grade A label had one more album to be released by the artists under contract, and the fans wanted more leaks to resurface. The estate, under the direction of rapper Lil Bibby, decided to tell the fans that this next album would release an album of "fan favorite leaks" to be enjoyed by the public, and on November 28 he did just that. However, some fans did not agree that is exactly what happened.

While the album received much positive feedback, the majority of the diehard fanbase was still not pleased as they believed many popular and great leaks were left off the album. Therefore, Juice Wrld's estate came to a consensus: let the fans vote for songs on a deluxe addition to the album. The news quickly reached the public, and fans quickly went to vote on their favorite Juice Wrld leaks that they wanted released. After many days of voting, the results are in and the songs on the deluxe are confirmed. The songs added will be "Rental", "Smith & Wesson", “Starstruck”, “Designer”, “Drive Me Crazy”, “K Like A Russian”, “Stainless”, “Bel Air”, “All Life Long”, and “Lost My Mind.” We do not have a confirmed release date for the deluxe, but it is expected to be later this month, so hopefully the deluxe will meet the expectations of the ever-hungry Juice Wrld fanbase.
