Challenge First Paragraph Last Sentence

The coffee shop seems empty, not a lot of movement or noise, just the quiet chattering of the workers behind the counter and the hiss and rattles of the machines while they are cleaned and run. No sun outside, maybe that is why the coffee shop is mostly empty as it is, not a lot of people interested in going out if there is no sun. No rain though, seems like the weather report claiming a downpour was wrong. Sadly. Rain would have been nice, a good break in the normal bright, hot, dry weather. Not much to do now, just keep typing away on the keyboard, let the music go in one ear and out the other along with the background noise while getting those last few sentences finished. Nearly done now, then back home to sleep. Or maybe to watch a new show or film. So many options.

Last few sentences finished, packing up and heading back to the car to return to the empty apartment to sit alone in a chair and stare at a screen, always so alone.
