Q

Lululemon's Rare Sale

Gift:

Seeing Red? Why Perimenopause Might Be to Blame for Your Sudden Anger Issues What to do when hormonal shifts have you Hulking out.

Our editors handpick the products that we feature. We may earn commission from the links on this page.

boiling point.

HEARST OWNED

to The Change, and which are...well, just a you thing.

health woes people encounter in midlife to see which can be chalked up

Sure, we know that menopause is behind night sweats and hot flashes, but is it to blame for everything that goes awry when you're over a certain age? In this new series, we're unpacking some of the funkiest

You don't know rage until you've felt perimenopausal rage. We're talking red mist. Full-body possession. A sudden, uncontrollable surge that makes you want to drop-kick a decorative bowl across Crate & Barrel because someone had the audacity to brush against you.

This Hulk-like behavior has a biological explanation—but hormones alone don't tell the whole story, says psychiatrist Pooja Lakshmin, MD, hormonally, neurologically, socially. It's a soup." And many of us are at a author of Real Self-Care. "There's so much going on at this stage in life-

Why You're Suddenly Seeing Red Hormonal chaos is definitely one key piece of the midlife rage puzzle. In perimenopause, your sex hormones spike, crash, and ricochet like the smallest child in a bounce house. Estrogen fluctuations disrupt serotonin an emotional buffer. Meanwhile, the drop in progesterone messes with the neurotransmitter GABA, your brain's natural calming system.

The result: miserable, intense anger directed at loved ones, strangers, and norepinephrine, both of them mood regulators, leaving you without coworkers, twisted coat hangers, unwashed dishes, randos telling you to "calm down," that ditzy coworker with the extreme vocal fry, you name it. Is This Really All There Is? Around the same time your brain chemistry is short-circuiting, you may also be deep into a midlife reckoning—the soup's other main ingredient.

"There's this feeling of being lost," says Lakshmin. "Like, I did everything I was supposed to do—I was a good mom, a good worker, a good wife. And Maybe your kids need you less. Or your job feels stalled. Or a once-steady relationship has hit the skids.

now what?"

improves.

That disorientation can spark real reflection. Some women make major life changes: a divorce, a new career. Others find a quiet freedom in letting go of who they thought they were supposed to be. "The gaze isn't on you the way it was in your 20s or 30s," Lakshmin says.

"You don't have to perform anymore. There's this growing sense of: I know what's best for me. I no longer trust that someone else does."

Lakshmin recommends considering medical support such as Body First, Then Life Before you can start interrogating your life choices, you'll need to curb the urge to punch everyone in the face.

menopausal hormone therapy (MHT) or selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors (SSRIs) to help get your body back to solid ground. "Once your biology is regulated," she says, "you can start to do the deeper emotional to better process your feelings. The good news: Even without medical intervention, your hormones will eventually stabilize. According to a 2025 study published in the journal

Menopause, while anger often spikes in early perimenopause, it tends to fade as you get closer to menopause and emotional regulation health professional can also help you learn healthy coping mechanisms work of figuring out: What's next?" Therapy with a licensed mental

In other words, the Hulk inside you will eventually subside, leaving you room to tackle your "why" with the calm precision of Bruce Banner...ideally, without all the ripped shirts. Member Exclusive: Explore "The Life You Want Class" Library

WATCH NOW

Live Your Best Life with Oprah Daily intention videos, and more. VIEW MEMBER PERKS

Oprah Oprah reflects on her deep friendships, overcoming adversity, and tapping into your highest self by living with intention. READ MORE Learn to live your best life with an Oprah Daily subscription. Enjoy exclusive articles, videos, classes, a print edition, a digital archive, Oprah's weekly

Set Intention with

Get expert advice on everything from DBT and menopause to mental health and psychedelics. READ MORE

Prioritize Your

Health

A New Wearable Is Coming To Track Steering Philanthropy Forward Perimenopause

Just One State

This Easy Habit Will Improve

Is This the Key to Losing

Menopause Weight?

About Us

Newsletter

Your Gut Health

Fascia

Why Being 'The Strong One' Is Self-Sabotage

FDA Might Nix Warning from

Japanese Walking Is Taking

Over Social Media

Vaginal Estrogen

Advertisement - Continue Reading Below

Subscribe Customer Service Give a Gift Being Green

©2025 Oprah Daily LLC. All rights reserved. Privacy Notice Your CA Privacy Rights/Shine the Light DAA Industry Opt Out CA Notice at Collection Terms of Use

We may earn commission from links on this page, but we only recommend products we back.

Contact Us

Press Room

YOUR PRIVACY CHOICES: OPT OUT OF SALE/TARGETED ADS

₩Wacoal Lifestyle > Wellness

By Lisa Arbetter Published: Aug 06, 2025 12:45 PM EDT □ SAVE ARTICLE G LISTEN (4 MIN)

Flexible-fit that evolves with you SHOP NOW

W Wacoal

WELLNESS

Advertisement - Continue Reading Below

Menopause Protections Are Now Law In

Predict Your Longevity

This One-Minute Test Can

Super Agers

You Don't Need 10,000 Steps

Every Day, Says Study