If the so-called 'bad boys' always get the girls, then you would need to start shopping for your go-to bad boy paraphernalia, right? Wrong. Or at least, that is the sentiment echoed by Allan Wu; you have probably seen him host three different editions of The Amazing Race, or you have probably seen him on the cover of a men's magazine. But on one particular night last week, we saw him elsewhere: at Singapore Indoor Stadium, right after the ONE Fighting Championships mixed martial arts (MMA) event. And from what we gleaned from the quick chat we had while on an adrenaline high, Wu hardly thinks you have to resort to Harleys or sculpting an eight-pack to be The Man.

It has to come from somewhere... deeper.

SM: Hello there, Allan! Great meeting you post-ONE FC. Tell us more about what's going on with you nowadays.

AW: I've been quite busy at the moment. 'Mata Mata 2: A New Era' is currently screening on Mondays at 8PM on Channel 5, and the cast is busy promoting the show. I'm also working each day on a new Starhub show called 'MIK: Men in Kindergarten', where I get to be a teacher at a preschool and see what it's like to work with children all day long.

Finally, I am also trying to wrap up filming for 'The Amazing Race China Celebrity Edition' for the China market so I'm excited to be hosting the third version! It's already the second highest rated show in all of China! This might mean I'll need to head over there more often to flex my Mandarin speaking skills. Hah!

SM: You look to be in great shape. Do you practise MMA or any other combat sports yourself? If so, how often?
