ADAPTIVE SPORTS CENTER

GIVING TUESDAY

This Giving Tuesday, Give the Gift of Possibility

"Instead of being told what I couldn't do, I was asked what I wanted to do."

– Kevin Astrup, ASC participant

After a spinal cord injury left Kevin an incomplete paraplegic, one of his biggest goals was to get back on a mountain and snowboard with his family. Unfortunately, after being told by another adaptive program that snowboarding was no longer possible, Kevin began to accept that he might never return to the sport he loved.

That changed when he came to the Adaptive Sports Center. Our instructors saw an opportunity where others saw limitations. They worked together to create specialized equipment tailored to Kevin's abilities and helped him get back on the snow. By the end of that week, Kevin wasn't just standing—he was riding.

Today, Kevin averages 30 days on the slopes each season, riding independently alongside his family and friends. His journey is a reminder that adaptive sports are about so much more than recreation. They're about independence, confidence, connection, and rediscovering what's possible.

This Giving Tuesday, we're asking you to help give that same opportunity to others.

Your generous contributions keep our programs running and ensure they remain accessible to people with disabilities and other specific needs. A full-day adaptive lesson costs the ASC approximately $900, but our Access for All pricing reduces that rate to just $95. Donations and grants make up the difference.

Continuing our Access for All pricing depends on donors like you.

WILL YOU PAY IT FORWARD?

Thank you for being an essential part of the ASC family!

The Adaptive Sports Center is a Colorado Enterprise Zone Project, offering a 25% state income tax credit on donations of $250 or more, up to $100,000 annually.
