The Paris Climate Conference (COP21) is being called the most important climate event of our lifetime. After 20 years of failure to reach a universal climate change agreement, signs are positive that this year world leaders will finally pass a legally binding plan to reduce carbon emissions.

CLF has led New England's charge to turn this climate challenge into climate action. We have an opportunity in Paris to show how local action can – and should – have a global impact. You can help get us there.
