Justin Timberlake Finally Talks About THAT Famous Outfit With Britney Spears

I'll admit it. My fashion sense in the 2000s was not good. Actually, that's an understatement. I dressed like hair glitter and frosted lip gloss threw up all over me. It wasn't a pretty sight! But the good news is that most of the photos were taken on a bulky camera and will never see the light of day on the internet. Well, it's not the same for celebs. They (and everyone else on the internet) have to relive those days of crimped hair, platform flip-flops and low-rise jeans.

A very famous outfit comes to mind when I think of the early 2000s and celebrity fashion. I'm pretty sure we're all thinking about the same thing: Justin Timberlake and Britney Spears' matching denim outfit. And now JT is finally talking about what went through his mind at that time!

Before we had Ryan Reynolds/Blake Lively and Chrissy Teigen/John Legend, there was the ultimate couple who gave us #RelationshipGoals.

That couple was none other than Britney Spears and Justin Timberlake.

They knew each other from The Mickey Mouse Club and started dating in 1999. Unfortunately, in 2002 they called it quits.

But before they called the relationship off, they went to the American Music Awards in 2001 and blew everyone away with their matching outfits. It changed the world and now JT is finally talking about it.

While promoting his movie Trolls in Australia, Justin was asked to talk about anything he learned about the music industry that he wish he knew back when he was in NSYNC.

His answer? "If you wear denim-on-denim, it will get documented."

Yup, JT finally admitted that the denim-on-denim outfit wasn't the best decision.

"Did you see the outfits NSYNC wore?! It was just... it was such a crazy time. The world was different. The music industry was different," Justin said.

Does Justin think the Canadian tuxedo look can be brought back? "You know what, I don't even think I could bring that back."

But then after thinking about it some more, he admitted that "if it's worn properly, it could be brought back."

So maybe we won't see Britney and Justin get back together. And maybe we won't get to see them in matching outfits again. But there's hope for something else!
