

I had the pleasure of working with Amanda for five years during her time as an editor with Influence & Co. Amanda is a strong technical editor who draws on her years of experience writing, reporting and editing to produce high quality content on a consistent basis.

In her position as an Account Team editor at Influence & Co. Amanda had to adapt quickly to different clients' writing styles, industry jargon and publication preferences and she did so with ease. Her creative writing skills shone through in the many instances she had to make content from what most would consider boring industries captivating and engaging. As an Account Team Editor Amanda frequently had to interview clients for content and discuss edits with them over the phone. She is great at striking the perfect balance in client communication of professionalism and friendliness which allows her to form great relationships with her clients.

Amanda truly cares about her work, and is a pleasure to work with. If you have any additional questions about Amanda's work at Influence & Co. please feel free to reach out to me directly.
