FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

AMESBURY COLLEGE TO HOLD REUNION FOR SCHOOL OF JOURNALISM GRADUATES.

The Reunion will involve Alumni from all classes.

Amesbury, MA (October 9, 2019) – For the first time in the history of Amesbury College, The School of Journalism will be holding a large-scale reunion involving all graduating classes. The class reunion will be on October 22-25, in tandem with the school's 75th-anniversary celebration. A class reunion of the School of Journalism's graduates to will be taking place next fall.

Dr. Sarah Singh, who is the current dean for the last five years, stated in a recent quote, "We've never attempted anything like this before. We are expecting a large turnout, and we've already received replies from graduates ranging in age from 24 to 98. The school's long history of excellence makes this an especially important occasion," she replied. Alumni and Executive editor of the Los Angeles Times, Mr. Sergio Rodriguez stated in a recent interview, "I owe practically all of my success to what I learned while at Amesbury. Professor Pratt was one of the funniest and, at the same time, most serious of all of my teachers. I'll never forget him. While the newspaper business has certainly changed over the years, the school, to its credit, has remained on the cutting edge of journalism education."

About Amesbury College

Amesbury College is a nationally famous, small liberal arts college on the East Coast. Its reputation for academic excellence has consistently placed it in the top 10 in private colleges in the country. The Amesbury College School of Journalism is the oldest journalism program in the Mid-Atlantic region of the U.S., and current records show nearly 700 living alumni of the school.
