Yamaha joined an army of brands to solve the "last-mile journey" by introducing an odd-looking three-wheel electric scooter, Tritown.

The scooter features twin front wheels that use Yamaha's Leaning Multi-Wheel mechanism. This allows riders to lean in to turn and to keep their balance when stopped. Built-in to the rear wheel is the 500W electric motor powered by a 380Wh lithium-ion battery. Yamaha said it can reach a top speed of 15mph.

Yamaha is carrying out the second phase of public tests from mid-July to mid-August 2019, calling members of the public in Japan to try out the TriTown.

YOUR MORNING CUP OF COFFEE IS NOW AVAILABLE IN A SNEAKER

The coffee grounds from your morning cup of coffee are now available as a sneaker. Designed by Ren, these waterproof sneakers are made from recycled coffee grounds and are odor resistant for their entire lifecycle.

The Finnish company combines coffee waste with recycled plastic to create a fabric that is light and durable. Every pair of #Rens uses the waste from 21 cups of coffee, and 6 recycled plastic bottles. The sneakers are made to be odor-proof, anti-bacterial, and quick to dry. The sneakers are also vegan-friendly. #Rens is a fully-funded Kickstarter campaign and closes early on August 15, 2019.

THIS LIMITED-EDITION ELECTRIC MOTORBIKE LOOKS LIKE A PIECE OF VINTAGE WOODEN FURNITURE. DESIGNED BY FRENCH STARTUP NEWRON, THE BODY OF THE EV-1 IS CARVED OUT OF WOOD.

Unlike other electric motorbikes, the design of the EV-1 is unique and eye-catching. The wooden body panels curve around the barrel battery. The battery is not hidden and features rings of LED lights that change colour depending on the amount of power left. The bike has 75 kW of power (about 102 hp) and 240 Nm of torque allowing it to sprint from 0 to 100km in less than three seconds.

According to Newron, the bike also includes intelligent power control that will regulate energy use based on the battery level. It automatically reduces usage as the battery depletes, which ensures that the end destination is always reached.

Newron is partnering with French firms Dassault Systems, and Advans to build the bikes. It's rumoured that only twelve bikes will be manufactured. Sales are estimated to start in 2020, although an official launch date has not yet been announced.

1. Start the day with a morning run along the bund catching the golden rays from sunrise.
2. Next, freshen up and take a stroll through the French concession fueling up on a hearty breakfast at one of the many hip cafes in the area.
3. Time to pop on over to peoples square to indulge in the wedding market and experience like never before.
4. Now, let's wonder the tiny lanes of Yu Garden taking in the sights of traditional pavilions, pagodas, towers and ponds.
5. Pop back to Nanjing Road to wander the shops.
6. Time to cruise over the Huangpu River to Pudong just in time to watch the sunset from one of the big 3 viewing towers.
7. A quick meal at one of the many restaurants and a quick fill up on caffeine .
8. It's a return to Nanjing Road to take in the neon lights illuminating the shopping lane. .
