

First and Last

Seeing you again, made me realise a lot of things. Some are thoughts that I have locked inside a chest in my mind, some are feelings that I've buried deep within my heart, and some are emotions that I thought I'd never feel again. For the past few years, I have tried to stop thinking about you. I've tried connecting myself with other people, but deep down, I knew that I was just numbing the feeling of missing you. I miss the way you used to go to my class just to talk to me during break periods, the way we used to force our favorite characters upon each other, but most of all, I miss the way we loved.

When I saw you, I thought that maybe I'll stop loving you in the way that I do now if we talked in person again. But, I was wrong. You are the same charming, magnificent, and intellectual boy that I met before, and now, I'm conflicted because it seems that I've fallen in love with you all over again. I know that God has a different person in mind for you, and that it will take a while before your family gets used to me again, but I can't help but want to feel a little selfish.

I have tried to let go of you before. I found a guy who was nothing like you, but still attracted me. He didn't reciprocate my feelings then, and I'm actually glad that he didn't because he made me realise a couple of things. First, we're better off as friends because we can never have a serious conversation together, and second, I still loved you. Before, I told myself that I'm only in love with our memories together but, that was not the case.

Of course, I don't want to rush into anything right now, but a huge part of me also wants for us to try again in the future. If you don't want to because of the circumstances, then it's okay, I just want you to know how I'm feeling and what I'm thinking of because I hate hiding things from you.

I want to be with you through everything. I want to be the one who you talk to when you're feeling sad, joyful, or even slothful. I want the love we had before, but even stronger. This is all too much to ask, and I may be rambling, but it's the truth. You have always been the person I knew that I want to spend the rest of my life with, I just wish that things have turned out differently, but I'm glad that we are each other's first loves.