Subject: (HTML VERSION): The power of prayer—and women!

Dear Carol,

When a community doesn't have water, it can be dire. If water is contaminated, it can be devastating—even deadly. Around the world, women and girls—usually mothers and daughters—have to make the long trek to collect water for their families.

So when a woman—making her way to the nearest well in South Sudan—came across a team of mechanics dismantling a well pump that hasn't worked since last year, she looked to the sky and said a prayer for the pump to be repaired quickly.

Now, women like Mary Mano, a pump mechanic trained by Catholic Relief Services in Pibor County, South Sudan, are an answer to that prayer.

Floods last year in South Sudan submerged countless wells across the Jonglei State, leaving them contaminated or out of working order.

But because of gifts like yours throughout this year—and the determination of Mary and her colleagues—well pumps are being repaired and clean water restored to communities. Thank you!

Peace and light,
