Hey Elizabeth!

It's me! Well, you. Or should I say us?

Anyway, I'm writing to you from a few years down the road because I wanted to thank you from the bottom of my (well, our) heart for working as hard as you did for our democracy.

I know things were looking pretty rough for a while in 2020. Between the COVID pandemic upending our way of life, to RBG's tragic passing, to the horrific and senseless deaths of too many innocent Black people at the hands of police, I remember vividly how helpless and terrified we felt.

Things are looking brighter these days, but I'm going to be honest — this wouldn't be the case if you hadn't stepped up to the plate.

Instead of letting your fear paralyze you, you let it motivate you. You took your love of country and community and turned it into action. You talked to young voters all across Wisconsin and helped them make their voices heard at the ballot box. I'm here to tell you that it really did make a difference.

You've always been a fighter.

Thank you for fighting for us,

Elizabeth
