

True Brew

Hopper retells a Belgian secret, several centuries old. But it is as unshackled from redundant traditions as today's youth. The brand is passionate about reinterpreting authentic monastic beers for the 21st century. The name references hop-flavoured, abbey-crafted beer brews from Medieval times.

Hopper is crafted for today's youngsters who smoothly 'hop' from one experience to the other. Quick job switches or speedy city relocations, last minute travel plans or impromptu relationships, millennials hop countries as easily as bars.

Hopper is bottled artisanal beer for a generation on the move. Available in three flavour-styles, Saison, Witbier and Blonde are crafted to perfection by our master brewers. They are guaranteed to slake throats. Hopper Saison is a refreshing fruity farm ale. The Witbier is light, spiced and citrusy. Hopper Blonde is clear liquid gold, sweet and smooth.

Hopper maintains distinct integrity of flavour. An heirloom Belgian beer, its recipe has been faithfully handed down through each generation at the family owned brewery, since 1894.

Relive the heady days of bubbling, farm-fresh brews, when robed monks plucked hops by the hectare from fields and farms around their monastery. With that special ingredient, they created beers that were flavourful and safe to drink over long distances. Medieval royal couriers, tax collectors, soldiers, even farmers and bards, all carried kegs of their local monastery's brew with them.

Hopper belongs to a new generation of jet-setting connoisseurs. It reboots age-old recipes for the millennial nomad who wanders in search of fresh adventures. Pick up a chilled 330ml Hopper bottle or can. Pop open a contemporary experience.