

We Wait

She and I were one
Of my cells came hers, of my blood, her blood
The emotions, the fear, the eternal love, overflow into a flood
Time tangled in the arms of a clock
Standing still. Not ready for the shock...
Of life

Unity of body; separation of soul
Sharing in this gift more precious than gold
Treasure, love, keep safe, adore
Life changed ever more

Perfection, no matter the obstacle
For love is not methodical
Fear ever present, around each corner it hides
You dismiss it and hold on to the parental pride
Yet one day, it cuts through the flesh to the heart
And you are left broken apart
Unsure of any decision to be made
Unsure of how to engage

Fear

Does he win
Do you give in
Do you fight and end up in a state of mortal sin
What is the correct decision
A test, a physician
Or that mother's intuition

I wait

Cloaked in fear, torn with threads of hope
Do I truly know, what I know
Or am I fooling myself with my own sordid ego

We wait

I still hesitate
But we wait
For is it not all God's work and our fate?