

The Fine Line Between Serious & Ridiculous

Posted by Sandhya Divakaran On July 22, 2013 In Home Hypes, The Artsy Corner

It is said laughter is the best medicine. It can even cure illnesses, develop long-term positive health and make for a fun lifestyle. A good chuckle is great to release hormones and relax the whole body, while improving circulation.

Since laughter plays such an important part in life, it is no wonder that FabFunky plays its role in bringing a smile to people's faces with its wonderful, funky collection of artwork that probably came as a flash of genius.

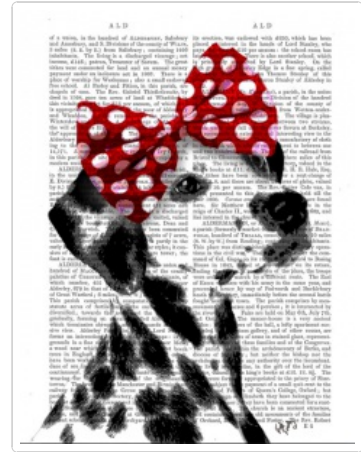

Being extraordinarily quirky, FabFunky's dictionary prints add some serious humor to your blank wall. And they are attached to a tad bit of history too. The base used for these funny artworks comes from antique dictionaries from the 1800's. So instead of a simple blank canvas you have a piece of a dictionary, which is juxtaposed with a seemingly contradicting image! It's almost as if the serious and ridiculous sides of the brain got together for a caged fight.

And so, on one side, you have a meerkat scurrying about its business with a bicycle, and a Vespa, or whatever means of transport it can get; on the other hand, you see a pipe-smoking, well-dressed, gentlemanly fox. This joining of the old and bizarre is what makes this eccentric collection unique.

Turning your wall to an animate portion of your house, these creative works of art beckon with their attractiveness. And since we all need a laugh from time to time, FabFunky goes on its quest quietly, making the world fabulous, one picture at a time.

If FabFunky has made you fall off your chair in splits of laughter, then go on to www.desado.com to indulge in the entire collection. Bring home some happiness.
