This clutch was an amazing find at a thrift shop in my hometown. I love the thin flat beads that act like chain mail around the whole purse.

It reminds me of the 1920s so I like to think my clutch was previously owned by a party girl who took it everywhere with her.

She'd put in her staple makeup pieces – a bold red lipstick, plus a little pair of gloves. Necklaces would get tangled up inside and her flapper dresses would always be complemented by her favourite purse. This clutch has accompanied me to the horse races. It's the perfect size to fit in all my race gear (aka my portable charger).

Wherever I go, I must have my lip balm in my pocket or handbag, no matter what! I have dry lips and this particular lip balm adds a little colour too. If I'm wearing lipstick, I'll bring it along because it slowly fades throughout the day. Sometimes I'll throw in my headphones if I'm walking somewhere or doing my groceries. I found this beautiful little wallet at my parent's place and I immediately fell in love. Turns out it was my cousin's wallet before she passed away and although I never met her, it's still nice to have something of hers.
