

A woman with long, wavy brown hair is shown in profile, looking towards the right. She is wearing a thick, multi-colored plaid coat. In the background, a light brown cow stands in a field of tall, dry grass. The overall tone is soft and contemplative.

ME

*The Most Dangerous Thing I Ever
Lost Wasn't My Husband. It Was Myself Long Before He Died.*

Why Lauren?

MAMA FARMETTE

Lauren Rae Talarico is a veterinary neurosurgeon, bestselling memoirist, and advocate for emotional truth who explores what happens after life shatters the identity we thought we were supposed to live. Through a rare blend of science, storytelling, emotional honesty, and the wisdom of animals and nature, Lauren gives audiences language for what survival does to us—and hope for finding our way back to ourselves.

Where Science Meets Soul

- Veterinary neurosurgeon with a rare perspective bridging neuroscience, trauma, and emotional healing.
- Connects science, storytelling, grief, burnout, animals, and nature into one unforgettable message.
- Speaks with refreshing honesty from inside the journey—not from the illusion of having all the answers.
- Transforms deeply personal experiences into universal lessons that audiences immediately recognize in themselves.
- Gives audiences language for experiences they've felt but never known how to explain.
- Leaves audiences feeling seen, understood, and equipped to reconnect with what is real.

If Your Audience Has Ever...

Lauren's message resonates with audiences who are searching for something real—people whose lives have been interrupted, whose identities have been shaken, and who are trying to reconnect with themselves after survival mode took over.

- Burnout
- Anxiety
- Trauma
- Grief & Loss
- Widowhood
- Identity Loss
- Reinvention
- Perfectionism
- Life Transitions
- Self-Abandonment
- Emotional Exhaustion
- Finding Yourself Again

Where To Connect With Lauren...

mamafarmette.substack.com
hello@mamafarmette.com
mamafarmette.com
@mamafarmette
@mamafarmetteco

