

Best App to Find Tennis Partners

Finding a reliable tennis partner can be one of the best things to happen on your tennis journey. It will make the game fun and motivate you to hit the court for every training session.

However, this is not an easy task, and many players are left with the only option of practicing tennis alone, which can be beneficial but can make you feel isolated. It doesn't have to be this way, so take a look at our list to find what tennis partner app can work best for you. Let's dive in!

Best App to Find Tennis Partners Reviewed

Listed below is a selection of the best apps to find a tennis partner. These reviews are based on some key elements, such as performance, utility, user experience, and the innovative solution they can provide.

Best Overall: Play Your Court

Play Your Court is the best tennis app on our list, and we can not recommend this enough. It is so incredibly easy to use that even those who are digital-shy can work their way around it effortlessly. All you have to do is download the app on your smartphone or visit their website to sign up, and immediately you can join their ever-growing tennis community. Depending on your location, the app will match you with other local players who are in the same skill range. Finding tennis partners has never been easier, and you can join their competitive league for more fun and regular play. Don't worry; you don't have to be a pro or dedicate hours of your day to training; it is way more relaxed than a normal championship, and the main purpose is for players to have fun and build a better community.

If you feel like you need professional help to improve your skills at Play Your Court, you can book some private lessons. The app will recommend and connect you with the best local coaches in your local area. Play Your Court app also provides the members the fantastic option of playing instruction videos on demand. If you have a question or something is bothering you about your performance on the court, all you have to do is ask. Their pros will get back with a quick video to explain the correct form or technique. You can watch those videos over and over again anytime you want. How cool is that?

Also, VIP members get discounts on tennis items, which are usually expensive, such as rackets or shoes. This app will become your best motivation to keep up with training because it works around your schedule to fit in a training session. Even if you change locations, it will show you the closest local courts where you can play.

Product Specs

- Platform: Android, IOS, Website
- Coach finder: Yes
- Court finder: Yes
- Video lessons: Yes

Pros

- Best overall app
- Easy and convenient

- Videos on demand
- Matches with local players and coaches

Cons

- Nothing, this app is great.

Runner Up: RacketPal

The Racket Pal app was founded with the clear goal of creating a friendly sports community where players can share their experiences and find suitable training partners. In this app, you will find partners for all sports played with a racket; tennis, table tennis, squash, and paddle. It is quite easy to use and will immediately match you up in your local area. There is an option to set up or join matches with fellow players at your skill level. It will show you all the tournaments and sports events happening near you. What was interesting about this app is the option to allow users to set up their public games for anyone to join, in a sense creating a small, personal tournament. This is a great way to have more fun with the game and get to know more people with the same interest in tennis. The RacketPal app also features learning options from professional coaches and their sparring patterns. Overall it worked fine most of the time, but it did have some episodes where the app would crash down. Also, another drawback is that all users must pay the membership fee first, or else they can get a match-up.

Product Specs

- Platform: Android, IOS,
- Coach finder: Yes
- Court finder: No
- Video lessons: No

Pros

- Easy to use
- It helps to find local players
- Wide community
- Includes other sports apart from tennis

Cons

- Semi-regular bugs can ruin the experience
- You have to pay to get a match

Best Free: Rally Tennis

Not all users are willing to pay for app subscriptions, and that's totally understandable. We still have the best free app recommendation for you, though. The Rally tennis app is available for Android and IOS and does not require payments for any of its features. It works just fine and has attractive templates and some cool options. All you have to do is to sign up by creating a profile, and it will match you with possible tennis partners in your local area. The app has filter settings based on your skill level, age, gender, and location to find the type of player that is more suitable for you. They're also a chatting option, where players can communicate directly and set up joint training or games together. The app does regular updates to show the players' availability. You can also schedule when you are hitting the court to make yourself visible to possible tennis partners. The app makes the browsing of all profiles or requests easy, you have the option to accept or delete a game invitation, and you'll also be notified if someone accepts your play request.

Product Specs

- Platform: Android, IOS,
- Coach finder: No
- Court finder: No
- Video lessons: No

Pros

- Best free app
- Easy to browse
- Availability calendar
- Filter settings

Cons

- It doesn't show local courts or tennis clubs
- Not a big tennis community
- It doesn't have a joint chat for leagues members

Best Social: TennisCall

The Tennis Call app has the best networking features and can be your best shot at finding a tennis partner. This app is user-friendly and can be downloaded for Android or IOS. It allows the player. It has a nice design, is easy to browse, and all the features are 100% free. Users can check the dashboard for possible matches they can join to see how other players are ranking and other relevant statistics. You can search for sports venues nearby, post your scores, and earn some points. The app has a booking option where you can set up training sessions or games. All players have the opportunity to set up their own leagues and tournaments or join existing ones. It's very easy to socialize with other partners due to the built-in messenger of the app, where users can speak directly or in joint chats.

At the Explorer bar, you can look up other players, coaches, or local courts nearside you. However, we did notice that the location options were limited. The app doesn't feature all cities; in this case, the player must manually set up the location and open a local league. This might be an isolating experience because it might take a long time until people nearside your area show interest unless they are already on the app.

Product Specs

- Platform: Android, IOS, Website
- Coach finder: Yes
- Court finder: Yes
- Video lessons: No

Pros

- Easy to use
- 100% free
- Booking option

- Built-in messenger

Cons

- Features limited locations

Best for Padel: Padel Mates

For all Padel lovers out there, we have found the ideal app for you. Padel Mate is what you have been waiting for; it's easy to use, has a nice design, and does a good job of connecting players. The app allows users to join or create their own games wherever they are. The filters settings help the players to join games and find game partners based on their skill levels, availability, and location. The users can also opt out of joining tournaments happening nearby them or create their own, inviting other players to join in. The tournaments can be arranged in different locations or game skills ranges, depending on the personal preferences of the creator. The Padel Mates app also allows the players to keep up with track of statistics and personal developments, which is a great way to measure your improvements over time. One thing we did notice, though, is that the app repeatedly crashes and sometimes doesn't save the new data. This is a shame because this is indeed a good app and has much more potential. Hopefully, the developers will take care of these technical problems and provide a better user experience.

Product Specs

- Platform: Android, IOS, Website
- Coach finder: No
- Court finder: Yes
- Video lessons: No

Pros

- Nice design
- User friendly
- Allows tournaments arrangements
- Keep up track of development

Cons

- The app often crashes down.

Best with Court Finder: Spin: Tennis Partners, Leagues

Spin, Tennis Partners, Leagues is one of the best apps to find a tennis partner or available courts in your area. This app is accessible for players living in London, Oxford, and Sheffield only, at least for now. It allows the players to partner up based on their skill range and meets at the closest local court. The app is very easy to use, has a cool design, and is free. The moment you sign up, the app will match you with possible tennis partners around the same level as you. The app's users can also choose to join different tennis leagues or competitions that are fun and friendly, and the main aim is to keep the players busy practicing their craft while still having a lot of fun. The developers continuously make performance improvements to ensure that everything runs smoothly and that users have a positive experience. This is also reflected in the ratings and very telling and overwhelmingly positive reviews. Hopefully, the developers will keep up with their great work and expand their network to other cities and countries.

Product Specs

- Platform: Android, IOS,
- Coach finder: No
- Court finder: Yes
- Video lessons: No

Pros

- Free
- Social networking
- Best app for court search
- Continues performance improvements

Cons

- Works in limited locations only

Our Verdict

Our favorite pick on this list is the Play Your Court app, which really wowed us. The developers have done a wonderful job, featuring all the imaginable settings possible. This app allows players to find their best match for tennis partners, has video instruction on demand, offers the opportunity to take private lessons from the best coaches, participate in leagues, etc. It has a great design, is incredibly easy to use, and has a huge online tennis community. Your tennis partner can be just a download away, thanks to the Play Your Court app.